

Figure 3: Note irregular dense and opaque areas within the lung parenchyma bilaterally. Also there is mild hyperexpansion of both lungs, along with the classic bubbly appearance and stranding suggestive of parenchymal damage and air trapping.

